

WHO WE ARE

With grants from HRSA, the Fletcher Group RCOE provides technical assistance and training, conducts original research, and informs public policy to expand the quality and capacity of recovery housing in rural America.

OUR UNIQUE HOUSING MODEL

We promote an innovative recovery housing model originated when Ernie Fletcher, then Governor of Kentucky, launched the highly successful Recovery Kentucky program of recovery residences that have helped thousands of Kentuckians rebuild their lives while saving millions in taxpayer dollars.

HOW WE MAKE A DIFFERENCE

- Stakeholder Engagement brings law enforcement, court personnel, social services, health services, housing, faith-based entities and political leaders together to address Substance Use and Opioid Use Disorders
- Program Development facilitates capital development and the acquisition of RH facilities (either repurposed or built from the ground up)
- Financial Modeling using braided funding to cover capital development and operating costs
- Program Operations including policies and procedures, hiring guidance, training, quality assurance, etc.
- Program Focus on individuals experiencing homelessness or involved with the criminal justice system
- Technology and Data Management including resident management systems, tracking, and outcomes documentation
- Research that informs public policy and evidence-based Best Practices
